Reporting questionnaire

Gender equality indicator 1: Gender composition of workforce

This indicator will enable the collection and use of information from relevant employers about the availability and utility of employment terms, conditions and practices relating to flexible working arrangements for employees and to working arrangements supporting employees with family or caring responsibilities. One aim of this indicator is to improve the capacity of women and men to combine paid work and family or caring responsibilities through such arrangements. The achievement of this goal is fundamental to gender equality and to maximising Australia's skilled workforce.

5a. If your organisation would like to provide additional information on your paid parental leave for primary carers e.g. eligibility period, where applicable the maximum number of weeks provided, and other arrangements you may have in place, please do so below.

Timing of paid parental leave for primary and secondary carers:

Paid parental leave is now available to all new parents that meet the eligibility criteria (both primary and secondary carers). Paid parental leave can be taken at any time within 24 months of the child's birth or adoption. This change will allow the secondary carer to take leave at the same time as their partner if they wish.

Superannuation on unpaid parental leave:

We recognise that time out of the workforce for caring responsibilities impacts retirement savings, especially for women. Cbus will now contribute superannuation at the rate of the Superannuation Guarantee Charge (SGC) on ALL unpaid parental leave in the first 52 weeks of leave requested.

Continuity of service for the purpose of long service leave calculations:

Unpaid parental leave of up to 12 months will count as service for the purposes of long service leave accrual. Unpaid parental leave of more than 12 months will not count as service, however, it will not break continuity of employment.

The new entitlements demonstrate our commitment to do our bit to shift societal expectations that women are the 'primary carers' and encourage all parents to play an active role in their children's lives.

CEO David Atkin supports International Human Rights Day concludes 16 Days of Activism - the global campaign to end violence against women.

In February 2019, CEO David Atkin was proud to announce that “Over the past 12 months the overall gender pay gap at Cbus has decreased to 16.6 per cent. This is significantly below the industry standard of 31.9 per cent. “And the organisation has achieved 50 per cent gender equity of employed staff across the fund.” This demonstrates Cbus' commitment to promoting gender equity and wage equality in our community.

As part of the procurement process Cbus targets organisations that have a gender diversity strategy. Where this is not present and/or easily identifiable, Cbus ask for additional information as part of the tender process to ensure potential vendors demonstrate gender diversity.

Everyday Sexism Survey:

In dealing with the barriers to gender equality, we need to be open to all the forces at play. It's not all about policies and initiatives. Behaviour is also a big part of it. Particularly everyday sexism. For many employees in Australia sexism is obvious, but many of us may be surprised by just how acceptable everyday sexism is. Everyday sexism might include insults masquerading as jokes, devaluing women's views or voice, role stereotyping of women's and men's work, assumptions about caring responsibilities and unmerited gender labelling. In our contexts, everyday sexism also comes into play at critical decision points affecting the progress and careers of women and men, influencing who to appoint, develop, sponsor, reward or promote. Noting that as part of our CEO's commitment as a Male Champion of Change he is committed to ensuring Cbus is an organisation free of sexism, and as part of his commitment to learning more, later this year we will be implementing a survey to understand employees experiences of everyday sexism at Cbus, and any actions we can take to eliminate this

Elevate:

The Elevate program was designed to empower potential women with the confidence to take action when career opportunities arise (as well as proactively create their own) and, in turn, increase their organisational and industry impact through the promotion into senior leadership roles. Underpinning the success of the Elevate program is the concept of 'sponsorship', the proactive, instrumental help to advance a person's career, which recognises that one of the greatest impediments to the advancement of women is their lack of access to senior sponsors, particularly male leaders. A key program component, therefore, is ensuring all female participants (Sponsees) have the opportunity to connect with a Sponsor (senior male leader) who receives pragmatic guidance and specific actions to formally use their own reputation, experience and organisational power to publicly back and effectively advocate for their female colleagues. Over a six-month period in 2018, 11 Sponsees and 11 Sponsors from came together to participate in collective development, delivered via a range of interactive workshops, coursework and one-on-one sessions. With the two streams intersecting at various stages, the Elevate experience provided a strategic, integrative opportunity for both sets of participants to deeply embed behavioural change at both an individual level as well as across critical levels within the organisation.

To measure the impact of Elevate, two independent and objective measurement tools, a bespoke survey and the Multi-Factor Leadership Questionnaire (MLQ) - globally, the most researched and validated leadership assessment tool, were employed at three time points across a 12-month period – pre-program, at program conclusion, and six months following program completion. An independent qualified researcher then employed a range of quantitative and qualitative measurement techniques to analyse the data collected to inform this synthesis and reporting. Key Findings include:

- 91% of Sponsees indicated that participating in Elevate increased their level of confidence in taking action to achieve career goals
- 80% of Managers noted greater resilience and confidence in Sponsees after their participation in Elevate
- Sponsors reported increased capability and confidence in Sponsoring
- Both Sponsors and Sponsees reported sustained changes (i.e. beyond the life of the program) in their Transformational Leadership* behaviours

Qualitative analysis completed as part of the independent measurement revealed:

- "The program has helped me understand that elevating the career objectives of female leaders is high on the agenda of senior leaders at Cbus..." [Sponsee]
- "[Sponsee] recently took the opportunity to pitch to a new client at short notice. There was little preparation time, however, she did the necessary research and took responsibility for the area she was allocated to pitch on. Feedback was very positive." [Manager]
- "...I'm on the lookout for opportunities to sponsor people across our team and provide them with opportunities....I look to leverage my network of connections and am more effective in connecting people." [Sponsor]
- "I see the positive changes in the male leader's understanding and behaviours around how they see the barriers to careers in the work place". [Sponsor]
- "Having gained experience through the program I have confidence I can apply this again and again" [Sponsor]

Supply Chain:

CBUS evaluates a company's policies and actions with respect to board composition and diversity. CBUS believes that the nominating and governance committee, as an agent for the shareholders, is responsible for the governance by the board of the company and its executives. In performing this role, the committee is responsible and accountable for selection of objective and competent board members. To that end, if there are no women currently sitting on the board, CBUS will vote against all members of the nominating committee for an ASX 300 company.
